CIRCUMSTANCES OF DISAPPEARANCE

On Tuesday, December 1st, 1987, at 6:30pm, successful Apple ][+ and game console developer Max Tojoby visited The Byte Shop in Milwaukee. He talked to the employees and some fans of his first work for the new Pico-8 console, AX-JOY TOMB. He described work on potentially making a game construction set, so anyone could make a simple little game for the console. He waved goodbye, walked out of the shop and was not seen again.

His development files and most of his systems arrived in packages to a fellow developer friend. All they found in his home of relevance was a single 5.25" disk with the words "TOY BOX" written on them in Sharpie marker. They could make nothing of the files.

If anyone knows any information on the whereabouts of Max Tojoby, please contact the Dane County Sheriff's office at (608) 555-1212.
